FAMILY VALUES - A WORK IN PROGRESS

THIS MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT FILM TO OUR COMMUNITY IN THIS DECADE!
Filmmaker, Pam Walton, creator of Out in Suburbia and Gay Youth, returns to SACWN with her latest work in September. Pam is looking for feedback on her work in progress and for funds to finish the project. This program is a fund-raiser for the film with a portion of each ticket purchased going to the filmmaker.

The evening will begin with networking and "dessert in the Green Room" at Sierra 2. Pam will join us to informally talk about her work. Then we'll walk next door to the theater for a special screening and discussion of her video. When completed, Walton's work will likely have a

FROM THE STEERING COMMITTEE

It's curious how these editorial columns write themselves each month. The process seems to be one of sitting at the computer and letting a stream of SACWN consciousness come forward. And so...

The past thirty SACWN days have been intense. We were joyful at the participation of our friend Angie Nunez in the Sacramento Women's Gathering at Camp Augusta. Then late that Sunday, she died of cancer. As she wanted, many of her SACWN friends and her sister singers with the Sacramento Women's Chorus came together the next Sunday to celebrate her life. We are deeply appreciative of all that Angie contributed to SACWN over the past three years (See article elsewhere in this newsletter). We will miss her energy, enthusiasm and outrageousness. Our love goes to her partner, Mary, whom she met at a SACWN SIG group.

Eighty incredible women spent the last weekend of July at Camp Augusta. Each year, the Gathering seems to have a special, yet different, personality. And this year was no exception. We played, laughed, danced and cooked. But most of all we got to know each other a little better. At the closing circle, one participant said, "I've been a SACWN member for over five years, but I made more friends this weekend, than while attending five years of SACWN events."

It has always been the dream that the Gatherings would create an environment to facilitate the building of "a SACWN family", a family of support and acceptance. It takes the commitment of everyone to be open to allowing the trust to build. It takes a great deal of understanding and maturity to accept each other for who we are, and to personally share our spirit with others. Inspite of the "roughing it" nature and close quarters of the campground, for the most part, it worked again at Camp Augusta.

Angie knew that she and Mary would be with family at the Gathering and they were. Her SACWN family was blessed to share the weekend with them at Camp Augusta.

A Work in Progress - Family Values
Sierra 2 Theater

Filmmaker Pam Walton is raising funds to finish her newest film which documents the truth about the anti-gay activities of the radical right. This is an evening that no member should miss. You need to know the extremes to which the fundamentalists will go to "rid this culture of homosexuality." We need to understand the enemy before we can stop the war. This is a very personal crusade for Pam. Her father, Rus Walton, is a leader in the religious right movement. Her film is about both of them.

SUCCESSFUL SACWNITE

Denice DeRicco is a woman who has had three very distinct careers. Denice was born and raised in San Francisco. After attending Dominican College, she worked as a nurse at a hospital in Walnut Creek. It was there that she became interested in the psychological aspect of human nature as it presented itself in the emergency room. Denice intended to take a few psychology classes to help her be a better nurse. But those few classes peak her interest and she decided to return to school.

Washington State University in Pullman Washington offered her a scholarship and research assistant position and she earned her Ph.D. in psychology. She was then hired as a faculty member and spent the next sixteen years teaching courses including Child Psychology, Psychometry and Experiential Analysis of Behavior to undergraduate and graduate student. During this time, she also maintained a private practice as a psychologist and gave expert testimony on alcohol related cases.

Her third career began when her dad asked her, his only child, to run the family business. Denice moved to Sacramento with her partner Linda and for the last twelve years has run the Sacramento Wire Rope and Supply Company. For the past five years she has been president of the company which specializes in fabricating lifting devices. She belongs to the Associated Wire Rope Fabricators Association and recently was asked to serve on the Web Sling Technical Subcommittee. "We are developing industry standards for the United States for web slings."

Denice came out at 17, meeting a woman on her summer job with the phone company. "I had thought I was gay, but then I was sure. I immediately told my parents and I've been "out" ever since. I participated in the underground days of the gay bars in San Francisco. The bars were our social gathering places. When the women's movement began, I was in graduate school. I would speak out on campus and lead workshops on feminist and lesbian issues. Several times, I spoke about lesbian and gay rights on television in Washington state."

Denice and Linda, partners for fourteen years, live on a 37 acre ranch in Guinda, along the Cache Creek where they raise Red Angus cattle. Six years ago, Denice ran for the Esparto School Board. "I'm in my second term now and I enjoy being able to use my skills on the school board. In a small community everyone needs to contribute. My neighbors asked me to run and so I did. I've become the fiscal conservative on the board."

Denice and Linda recently purchased an RV and joined the SACWN Rainbow Camping SIG. "We really enjoy our outings and meetings with other SACWN members."

Denice is especially proud of their children, "happily a baby butch who attends Mills College and a terrific son in high school in Washington State."

Success to Denice is measured by "the number of friends that you make and keep. I've been blessed with many good friends. I've been so lucky all of my life."

SACWN Says...

Windows, Everywhere we look.. It seems impossible that we don't have a computer SIG. Shouldn't SACWN have a web somewhere? Is there anybody out there who wants to take the lead and offer to bring us all up to the same level of computer compentcy? Let's talk. You can find this editor at 74117,330 @ Compuserve!

More Loss.. If you attended the SACWN April Film Festival, you saw a movie about May Sarton, poet, novelist and journal writer. She died on July 16 of breast cancer. Born in Begium in 1912, Sarton emigrated with her family to the U.S. during World War I. Orginally involved in theater, she turned to writing after her acting company failed in the 1930s. Sarton revealed her own homosexuality in her novel avout a lesbian love affair, Mrs. Stevens Hears the Mermaids Singing, and many of her stories featured independent women. "Joy, anger, all those things that society wants us to avoid, a poet must keep alive," Sarton said in a 1992 interview with the Maine Sunday Telegram.

Can't you just tell? It is only clip art on the back cover, but can't you just tell by the way she looks that she's a lesbian? How do we do that?

COMEDY AND MORE: A REVIEW

The August SACWN monthly program began with a surprise. Billed as the opening act, Sister Guido and the Bail Bonds, an acapella group of five local women, were loved by the audience for their creative performance of "do-wap" songs and innovative harmony. A favorite was their medley that included "Dyke of Earl."

By day these women wear titles such as attorney, college librarian, professional organizer, administrative manager and environmental horticulturist. Just for fun, the group began singing together two years ago and has appeared locally at the Lambda Cafe, the AIDS Memorial Walk, the Lambda Awards Dinner and the Gay and Lesbian Mardi Gras. With the warm appreciation given by the audience in August, they will likely return to entertain their sister SACWNites again.

Maureen Brownsey, the featured artist for the evening, kept the audience laughing with her personal tale of life in the comic lane. Born in Philadelphia, she began doing stand-up comedy in college (Chico State, she admitted). Well-know in the Bay Area, Brownsey produced a flow of tales and tangents that recounted and analyzed her experiences. From topics such as working at Wendy's, to body piercing, to calling Marilyn, the women who inspected her jockey's, Brownsey looks at real life and exposes the humor.

Brownsey also has a successful career as a film maker. Her recent production, True Blue has received national distribution.

An Obituary for Angie Nunez

In July of 1992, Angie Nunez showed up at the SACWN office and said "I want to get involved." She had read in the newsletter that a volunteer was needed to organize the SACWN booth at the Rainbow Festival and she offered to take on the task. Her truck was loaded with tables, chairs and boxes of SACWN newsletters and handout. Her task was to get the names and addresses of potential SACWN subscribers by offering three free issues of SACWN. The SACWN Single Connection members were recruited to help and the legend of Angie's involvement began.

When the facilitator of the Single's Group was no longer single, Angie became co-facilitator. When the SACWN Newcomer's Group need a leader, Angie volunteered to assist with that group too. Many women who were new to SACWN and/or Sacramento joined with Angie and other members on the last Sunday of the month for brunch and an introduction to our community.

In the fall of 1994, SACWN was preparing to celebrate the organization's tenth anniversary. It was to be a "classy affair" but affordable to all members. To underwrite the evening, ads were sold in a commemorative program. Angie offered to assist in the sale, selling more than $1000 worth of ads. Because of Angie's involvement, the ticket price was less than the actual cost of the evening and 17 limited income members attended the celebration free or at a significantly reduced price.

Even as she knew that her life was coming to an end, Angie asked to start a new SACWN Special Interest Group. She called it "Circle of Life". She wanted it to be a place where women who had life threatening illnesses and their partners could talk and gain support from each other.

Angie was born 58 years ago in Sacramento. She attended St. Francis Grammer School and High School and graduated from Sacramento City College where she performed in plays. She lived in Los Angeles for many years and in the 70's owned and operated a gay bar and restaurant. She moved to Lake Tahoe in 1986 and worked at Caesars' Tahoe as an Audit Manager for six years. In 1992 she returned to Sacramento.

Angie was a member of the Sacramento Women's Chorus, SACWN's Rainbow Campers and Camping Women. She met her partner, Mary, at a SACWN Top Ten SIG meeting. They lived together in Elk Grove.

In early May, Angie was one of the first to register for the Gathering at Camp Augusta. She looked forward to being there with her friends. As her health declined, accommodations were made so she could participate. Angie and Mary stayed in a house on the property so Angie could have access to oxygen equipment. Friends helped carry her wheelchair over the rocky terrain of the campground. On Saturday, she got to sit by the lake and splash her feet in the water. Saturday night she laughed with her many dance partners as she spun in her wheelchair to the music.

Angie died of cancer on July 30, 1995 at Kaiser Hospital. A service was held at St. Francis Church in Sacramento followed, at her request, by a "Celebration of Life." She is survived by her partner Mary, a brother, Raymond and family who live in Oregon and a sister, Victoria, who lives in Los Angeles.

on the life of every lesbian and gay person in this country. Design for showing on national television, it is Walton's intention that millions of people will see and be moved by the film.

Upset by the 1992 Republican National Convention, Walton started producing her film on Family Values, looking at her own family riddled with contradictions. She had intended to contrast her lesbian family with her biological family. While researching the religious right, she read the writings of her father.

As part of his vision for a society based on biblical principles, conservative author Rus Walton publicly flirted with the idea of imposing the death penalty for those who engage in same-sex intercourse. "Sodomy gnaws at the vitals and rots the soul of the nation that permits it to go unchallenged," Walton says in his popular book Biblical Principles Concerning Issues of Importance to Christians.

Rus Walton is the executive director of the fundamentalist advocacy group Plymouth Rock Foundation (PRF). He is a founding father of the ultraconservative Christian political movement known as reconstruction, which seeks to replace the American legal system with laws derived from the Old Testament.

By the time Pam Walton came out to herself as a lesbian in the late 60's, she had lost her mother to cancer, her father to the religious and political right, her sister to a commune in Berkeley and her brother to his struggles with their mother's death. "The death of my mother was really the death of my family," says Walton. It had been 15 years since she had made contact with her biological father. In those years, Pam became a prominent lesbian filmmaker and created her own lesbian family.

By some fluke while filming with her brother, Pam's father called and she filmed the first conversation she has had with him in 15 years. Since then there have been more conversations and a visit to his home in New Hampshire. There they confronted each other with their stereotypes. He though Pam was an ACT UP type, and Pam thought he wanted her dead because she is a lesbian.

It is not uncommon for filmmakers to produce a "video diary", however, this documentary is not just a personal statement about the Walton family. It also begins to explore the hypocrisies found among right wing fundamentalists who speak about Family Values but live a different story. Completed, this film has enormous potential for exposing to Americans the truth about gay and lesbian people as well as the radical right. It could create a watershed moment in the history of lesbian and gay people as "Roots" did for African Americans.

Pam needs $13,000 to complete the film. SACWN is hoping to raise $1000 of the needed funds. If this goal is reached, SACWN will receive a credit line in the film's list of supporters, but more importantly SACWN members will know they contributed to making the film and it's critical message available to the public. The goal of $1000 will be reached if the all of the theater seats are sold for the performance. Encourage your friends to attend and be part of the making of this "herstoric" film.
